

Description of the tour

J. Schmalz GmbH is one of Germany's leading companies in the sector of industrial environmental protection and makes extensive use of renewable energy. With the Schmalz Ecological Guided Tour, the company invites interested persons and groups to learn more about this on its premises. The Ecological Guided Tour begins with a presentation on the generation of renewable energy and the measures implemented in the company for protection of the environment. This is followed by the actual guided tour through various parts of the Schmalz production facilities, allowing the participants to see the actual environmental protection measures and to learn more about the background from models and information panels. On the tour, the participants are accompanied by members of the Schmalz staff, who will gladly answer any specific questions about particular subjects. On request, it is also possible to visit the company's own wind turbines.

J. Schmalz GmbH

J. Schmalz GmbH manufactures components and systems for transport and handling of parts in trade and industry, with the main emphasis on vacuum technology and its use in the areas of automation and manual handling. For its excellent environmental protection activities, the company was awarded the Environmental Prize of the State of Baden-Württemberg, the BDI Environmental Prize and the Green Week-Award of the ICEO.

In addition, Dr. Kurt Schmalz and Wolfgang Schmalz, the two managing directors of the company, were awarded the prize "Eco-Manager 2004" in November 2004.

In addition to making best use of all resources, the company is very active in the generation of energy from renewable sources such as wind, water, sun and biomass. At the moment, there are about 470 people working at the company headquarters in Glatten.
